

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The invention makes easy acquisition of depth distance information of a subject possible by a small-sized device. In a compound eye imaging system comprising a compound eye optical system having a plurality of optical blocks and an imaging element for picking-up object images formed by the optical blocks in imaging ranges provided for each optical block, the optical axes of the optical blocks are made to intersect each other at the object side.

6263650